

THE ROMAN CATHOLIC

ARCHDIOCESE OF ATLANTA

Memo

Date: June 9, 2025

To: Pastors, deacons, parish administrators and communications staff

From: Maureen Smith, director, Office of Communications

Re: Expanded offerings of The Georgia Bulletin

For more than 60 years, The Georgia Bulletin has been the official Catholic newspaper for the Archdiocese of Atlanta. In addition to being an award-winning newspaper, it is the historical record of our local church and the primary source of information from our local bishops.

To ensure our ministry meets the needs of our community, The Georgia Bulletin is expanding its digital offerings to include:

- Spanish podcast (Hablemos de Fe, beginning June 19)
- English podcast (available in November)
- Expanded social media content, web stories and e-newsletter

Each parish, mission, diocesan school and Chancery ministry will also receive free advertising each year, which can be two quarter-page ads or one-half page ad for print issues.

We will continue to offer 23 annual print issues of The Georgia Bulletin to every household in our parishes and missions that want to receive a paper. These expanded offerings give parishioners the option to receive local Catholic news in the way(s) that best fit their needs.

This comprehensive approach to Catholic news is reflected in our new title, The Georgia Bulletin – News of the Catholic Archdiocese of Atlanta.

To ensure our Catholic community has access to The Georgia Bulletin, we are offering marketing materials to be shared in parishes and missions throughout the archdiocese. Please use this online form to order printed flyers, poster(s), pew and prayer cards by Friday, June 13. These items will arrive in July for
